HIGHWAY PLAN FIGHT SEEN IN STATE

Southern California Puts Up Battle for Early Work In This Section

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 21.—The fight over highway construction in California was expected to come to a head today before the state Legislature when the highway committee presented its report to Governor Richardson.

The report, it was said, will recommend an increase in the gasoline tax, increased registration fees, increase in weight of trucks and other methods of raising revenue from road building.

A bitter fight over the recommendations of the committee was waged, with E. R. East of Los Angeles and J. B. Gill of San Bernardino battling for early construction of highways in Southern California. They asked that roads in the Southland be classified as among the first construction work to be done.

The question of classification of highways and the priority of them in the plan of construction has been a bone of contention in the committee.

Blair, internal revenue commissioner, to compel them to amend the income tax regulations so as to include California among the states having community property laws and permitting husbands and wives to make separate returns on half of the total income, was today dismissed by Justice Stafford of the district supreme court. No opinion was given, the court taking the position that the suit was in effect an attempt to prevent a tax collection and that mandamus was not the proper proceeding. An appeal was noted by the petitioners.

NOMINATIONS FOR COUNCIL NUMEROUS

Large Number of Citizens Being Proposed for Municipal Election

Nominations for City Council continue to flow into the office of The Glendale Evening News. The list of citizens suggested for the five vacancies on the City Council is steadily growing. Great interest is being taken and, it seems probable, candidates for the City Council to run at the municipal election in April will be obtained from the list appearing in this newspaper.

Many people have nominated George H. Bentley, 430 Riverdale drive, of the Bentley Lumber Co., but Mr. Bentley today informed The Glendale Evening News that he cannot become a candidate, and, therefore, requests that his name be withdrawn from the list.

"Also permit me to thank all those who have suggested that I would make a good candidate for the council. I appreciate their kind thoughts, but it will be impossible for me to enter the race."

Inglade Not Candidate

C. W. Inglade of 109 South Glendale avenue, president of the Glendale Amusement association, today announced through the columns of The Glendale Evening News that he is not a candidate for councilman and asks that his name be withdrawn from the list of candidates named by the people at large.

"I want to thank those who suggested my name as candidate for councilman," Mr. Inglade said, "and also thank them for the spirit and principle shown, but on account of numerous business interests I would not have the proper amount of time to devote to the position of councilman."

Boys In Fire Department Should Have Radio! Let's Buy Good Outfit For Them!

Large Number of Citizens Being Proposed for Municipal Election

A reader of The Glendale Evening News, in a communication to this newspaper, calls attention to the fact that the Glendale fire department is without a radio and that the fire laddies, on duty twenty-four hours, would, no doubt, appreciate a complete radio outfit. The writer of the communication, whose name is withheld by request, suggests that The Glendale Evening News take the lead in securing a radio outfit for the fire department. The suggestion appeals to the publisher of this newspaper, and so it is proposed to start a subscription list to obtain a fund to purchase a radio outfit.

The Glendale Evening News will start the fund with $10 and will receive subscriptions for all who care to give. A subscription list is at the business office of The Glendale Evening News, 139 South Brand, and other lists will be put in circulation. When a fund sufficient to purchase a good radio outfit is secured, The Glendale Evening News will request the presidents of the service clubs in Glendale to act as a committee in making the purchase and aid in the presentation of the outfit to the fire department employees.

The publisher of The Glendale Evening News communicated with A. H. Lankford, chief of the Glendale fire department, and he has given his sanction to the plan. This newspaper knows that the public will respond liberally and at once.

The communication received by this newspaper, and which caused the publisher to make this announcement, follows:

"I believe you are the one that everyone calls to help in every emergency or philanthropic work, so I thought perhaps you would be interested in helping to get a radio set for the fire stations, thus not waiting for the boys to lose their lives before showing our appreciation of their services in protecting our homes. About two months ago a fireman got his hand badly burned and blood poison set in, and he had a very serious and painful time. As some of the men have to be on duty every Sunday, it would be a fine thing if they had a radio set to hear the sermons and music, and I'm sure all churches would be willing to give a little towards purchasing one. You probably know that they do not get very high salaries, and those who do not have to pay rent are paying for a home or have other expenses which take all the money they get."

All right, folks, now you know the plan. Let's subscribe and see to it that the fire department gets a good radio outfit.

EX-CONVICT IS U.S. SOLON'S ACCUSER

Government Agent Charging Edwards as Rum Head Confesses

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Senator Edward I. Edwards, Democrat, of New Jersey, charged with being the "head" of the New Jersey rum ring, will not attend the Jersey City liquor trial unless his testimony is requested by a "responsible party," he said this afternoon.

The admission was given just after court opened and when George T. Vickers, special government prosecutor, was about to sum up his case against the ten Weehawken policemen, William Griffin, accused as director of the alleged rum ring, and another civilian, Harry Stearns of Weehawken, who are on trial.

Johannsen, City Hall.

Senator Harry Chamberlain of Los Angeles has introduced a bill providing for a state constabulary to patrol such projects as the Los Angeles aqueduct.

There are also the transcontinental highways to be patrolled, as well as the Sacramento river, but heretofore the enforcement of law has been a "hit and miss" affair. Particularly was this proved when the Inyo county ranchers seized the Owens river water and defied county authority.

Also, there is room for the state constabulary in co-ordinating the work of various counties and cities in criminal detection. The writer has talked with C. S. Merrill of the Criminal Identification bureau in Sacramento and he believes something feasible could be worked out along this line.

It is a subject of large possibilities and does not meet with the opposition of any law-abiding class, provided, of course, the constabulary is not misused, as is charged in some states.

An investigation of the Owens valley situation by a special commission appointed by the Legislature is quite probable. Senator Ralph Swing of San Bernardino, who represents Inyo county, has offered a resolution to that effect.

It is the senator's contention that Los Angeles city and the ranchers cannot get together without an intermediary shedding light on the true facts. With Mr. Swing open minded and not criticizing either of the factions, the writer believes he has a good idea in revealing the "niggers in the wood pile," as the old saying goes.

One of the few admirable appropriations bills to be introduced that is fostered by the State Agricultural society in asking for $750,000 to build a pavilion at Exposition park, Los Angeles, for the exhibition of California's resources. It would be in the nature of an all-year-round fair, the same as suggested for the state fair in the capital city. Because California is an "all year round" state, there is no reason why exhibits of its choicest products, from open season to season, should not be displayed for the benefit of tourists.

And, speaking of tourists, may not this humble servant of public opinion clarify in the minds of those who have been misinformed that there is no bill pending to tax the tourists.

Stories have been circulated throughout the country to that effect, but the writer of the article was misinformed. California is going to amend its laws, this writer believes, to make it possible for non-residents to transfer their property here with safety from taxation, a bill having been introduced which is similar to the law of Minnesota.

DESCRIBE NEW STYLES FOR SEASON

H. S. Webb and D. F. Peyton, Now In New York; Tell Fashion's Dictates

Hints of fashion's dictates for the early spring are given in a letter from New York from H. S. Webb, of the H. S. Webb store, North Brand boulevard and Wilson avenue, and the store's eastern buyer, D. F. Peyton, to G. C. Gauntt, who is to assume the management of the ready-to-wear department at the Webb store.

Mr. Webb and Mr. Peyton are selecting from New York fashion centers an attractive stock with which to formally open the reorganized department in the Glendale store. Only New York lines will be featured at the Webb store, which will be one of a chain of twenty stores served from New York. This insures a wonderful buying power, resulting in furnishing Glendale women the latest from the east.

In securing Mr. Gauntt to manage the reorganized department, Mr. Webb is greatly gratified. Mr. Gauntt comes to Glendale from Oklahoma City, where he had charge of a large ready-to-wear store.

Describe Styles
In their letter Mr. Webb and Mr. Peyton declare the popularity of the ensemble suit will be sustained for spring. These suits are seen in all silk combinations of printed crepe, plain, faille and flat crepes. Coats are of cloth in print and plain and range from the short jacket to the coat forty-two inches long.

There are many new styles in dresses, all giving the long line effect. There is usually trimming around the bottom of the dress, the trimming giving the long-waist line.

Among the attractive coats is the "Prince of Wales", a tailored garment with notched collar, with or without belt, single or double breasted, made of flannel or Kasha cloth. Many of the fur coats have a band fur around the bottom, but seldom is the fur collar used. When the new stock is opened at Webb's, Glendale women will be offered New York quality at most reasonable prices.

Mrs. Mortimer Baker of St. Mark's church, who is a member of the board of the home, is sponsoring the affair. Miss Williams is also a member of the board of the home. Among the entertainment features will be piano selections by Miss Grace Clifford of Los Angeles, vocal solos by Mrs. Nana King Custer, and two dances by Ina Fletcher, pupil of Pearl Keller.

L. W. CHOBE STATES VIEWS ABOUT FLOAT

Noted Designer of Prize Winners Says City Should Continue To Enter In Tournament; Publicity Of Value

L. W. Chobe, chairman of the Glendale float committee for the Tournament of Roses and designer of nine prize-winning floats for Glendale since 1920, in a communication to the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and the chamber's secretary, H. I. Wood, read at the meeting last night, gave his views on the float situation and the proposal to hold a local fiesta.

Mr. Chobe, in his communication, declared that he desired to correct the impression that he is in favor of Glendale not making any more entries in the Pasadena tournament. He pointed out the great advertising value of having a display and the great amount of publicity received by Glendale from local entries in the tournament.

The letter was read to the directors, and was received without comment. It follows in full:

"In an article in our local papers under date of January 14, 1925, I notice that at your regular meeting, January 13, 1925, steps were taken to withdraw Glendale from future active participation in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, and to start a local annual celebration in its stead. As chairman of the float committee, and designer and builder of nine prize winning floats for Glendale since 1920, I take this opportunity to express to you my opinion of the advertising value that Glendale has derived from the Tournament of Roses, and to correct the impression given by the press in regard to my ideas on entering floats in the tournament.

"Before a float was entered in the tournament this year I made the suggestion that Glendale be represented with a nice float, but not enter for competition. Since Glendale has continuously won so many first prizes, my thought was that this year we could be magnanimous and at the same time gain extraordinary advertising for our city. Then next year, we would have been in a position to 'bring home the bacon' again. This idea was not accepted by the board of directors.

Accepts Judges' Verdict
"As designer and decorator of the Glendale float it is not proper for me to question the decision of the judges, but to be good enough sport to abide by their decision, and at no time have I made a recommendation to enter a cheap float. I believe that next year is the time to 'go after' the first sweepstakes prize; I did make the statement, however, that, since some people were of the opinion that because Glendale had received all the highest honors for so many years, it would be impossible for her to get any more for some time, I therefore entering a float next year. I would find out if this were true, from the Rose Tournament association.

"I believe that the idea of Glendale holding a local annual fiesta would be all right, but to magnify (as the article stated) that Glendale could stage any celebration that would take care of the foreign advertising value derived from Glendale's participation in the Tournament of Roses is absolute folly. The statement was also made in the article

Chief Fraser's Suggestion Is Not Supported

An independent committee of twenty-five members to cope with traffic problems in Glendale will be formed when the Glendale traffic commission meets at the Harriett Mae Tea room tomorrow at noon. Lyman P. Clark, president of the Motor Car Dealers' association and now a member of the traffic committee, predicted today that recommendations of Chief of Police Fraser for a committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce, will be voted down at the meeting. He said virtually all members of the committee are known to favor a self-constituted commission similar to that maintained in Los Angeles. Though Chairman M. Walters could not be reached, Mr. Clark said he favored an independent commission. The meeting was to have taken place today, but postponement was necessary, Mr. Clark said. The recommendation of Chief Fraser will be considered at the meeting tomorrow, but it is most probable that the committee of twenty-five will be formed, notwithstanding, he declared.

MAKES PLEA FOR BEAUTIFUL CITY

Mrs. E. W. Richardson Tells Of Waste Paper Found On Glendale Streets

Reviving a spirit of "Glendale, the City Beautiful," which was prevalent ten years ago, Mrs. Ella W. Richardson, well-known Glendale resident of 300 North Brand boulevard, makes a plea for keeping Glendale sidewalks and streets free from unsightly papers. Mrs. Richardson says: "Last Sunday I walked down Brand boulevard to see the many attractive window displays and my eyes were detracted from art to confusion. This was particularly so at one store, where it was necessary to trample stacks of paper and string, left there by newspaper merchants, to reach the window.

"There should be some one in our city with authority to teach newsboys to tie waste papers and materials in one bundle and to remind them of the Golden Rule. Thus they would be cultivating order, system and kindness. "Our merchants spend much thought, time and money to have their window displays and it's up to citizens to appreciate their efforts and to remove what mars the street, at home or abroad. In the 300 block North Brand boulevard, you can gather bushels of paper each day from the streets. Something should be done to carry out the Glendale peacock pride."

Maids and Matrons to Hold Meet Tomorrow

The Maids' and Young Matrons' department of the Tuesday Afternoon club is to meet at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the clubhouse. Mrs. Claude G. Putnam, curator, states that there will be another lecture on home decoration.

OFFICIAL PREDICTS GREATER CONFUSION

Says Committee of 25 Too Large; Asks Chamber of Commerce Directors To Take Action; President Declines

Opposition to a self-constituted traffic commission in Glendale, declared to be the motive behind action taken at a meeting of the present traffic board a week ago, was voiced last night by Chief of Police John D. Fraser before the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

At a joint session between the traffic commission, city officials, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and members of Glendale service clubs a week ago yesterday, it was voted to increase the size of the commission from nine to twenty-five members and to model the enlarged group as closely as possible after the Los Angeles traffic commission.

Chief Fraser pointed out that the Los Angeles commission is a self-constituted organization without any connection with the City Council and without any power, save to suggest matters on which the council may act if it so desires. Chief Fraser opposed any such body in Glendale on the grounds that it would be "one more organization in an already badly over-organized community," that it would become a "source of confusion and that if such a committee is to be appointed, this appointment should come through the Chamber of Commerce." The chief also said he thought a committee of twenty-five was entirely too large.

Unnecessary overlapping would result should a self-constituted Glendale traffic commission be brought into being, Chief Fraser said. He declared the Chamber of Commerce was the proper body through which to handle traffic problems now confronting the city, and urged that the chamber consider the appointment of a committee.

C. of C. View
President D. H. Smith told Chief Fraser that the board of directors was not inclined to interfere unless invited to take a hand in naming the committee by the present traffic commission of nine, appointed by the City Council some months ago. That the traffic commission, composed of M. Walters chairman, M. B. Towman, secretary; Cam D. Thom, W. F. Yeo, H. Kuhn, Alex Mitchell, Robert Adams, Stephen Packer and A. F. Priest, branch out and divorce itself from affiliation with the municipal government was urged, it was said, after the body under its present status failed to get effectual co-operation in coping with traffic problems and securing action looking to their remedy.

The Highest Endorsement

"No greater service could be rendered the country than to increase the number of homes owned by those who occupy them. Building and Loan Associations, in countless instances, have made such ownership possible and, in so doing, have rendered invaluable aid in the campaign which the Government is conducting to promote thrift and encourage sound investment of funds that would otherwise be lost through speculation, fraud and carelessness."

Daily Greeting to News Readers

A LIE—
Does not become the truth by frequent repetition.
Is usually the quickest way into trouble.
Always mortgages the liar to more lies.
Can always find some evil heart to give it room.
Is the meanest sin of a cowardly soul.
Always hurts the liar much more than the one lied about.
Never makes a night's sleep any quieter.

DEMOCRACY AND TRUTH

Speaking of the rigid censorship of the press that is being enforced by the autocratic dictators who rule Italy and Spain, the Hemet News declares that democracy is made possible only through information, and that the truth is the best defender of the right, whether that truth be pleasant or unpleasant. Mussolini and Rivera are able to maintain their autocratic sway because they are able to keep knowledge and information from the people.

"The war, fought to save the world for democracy, very nearly defeated its own end by making, instead, the world easy for autocracy, because it was thought necessary during those days to disseminate good news rather than the truth," the News goes on to say. "It was an age of propaganda; an age of truth only if the truth happened to be the happy kind that suited the ears upon which it fell; the kind that damned the enemy into a satanic hellishness and kept him there while it made angels with wings out of everybody and everything connected with our own cause. The truth, of course, was that the enemy was not all devil, nor ourselves all angel. It is six years since the war ended, and the whole of that truth has not yet been relearned. And out of the fact that it has not been relearned have sprung a thousand and one fungi of autocracy—intolerance, race prejudice and torism."

We believe the truth has been so well relearned that in case of another war our people would not again submit to useless and ridiculous censorship, that they would demand complete and authentic information in regard to every phase of the war, and that they would not respond to propaganda of the kind advanced during the late conflict.

If the winning of the World war by the Allies did not make the world safe for democracy, as we were promised, at least it made our own democracy a little more secure by teaching us the evils of the autocracy of censorship and lying propaganda.

HANDICAPPING THE NEWSPAPERS

Apropos the suit for $1,000,000 brought by Aaron Shapiro, well-known organizer of farm associations and lecturer on the economics of production, against Henry Ford for libelous articles appearing in Ford's Dearborn Independent, the San Bernardino Sun complains that it is not fair to ordinary newspaper publishers that other papers should be controlled by such powerful financial interests that they may use their columns as recklessly as they choose, hire the best of lawyers, meaning the most skilled and not those holding the highest ethical standards, and when they lose a suit, pay for it as jauntily as a Ford owner pays for five gallons of gas. Congress sought to lessen the evil of newspaper ownership by great financial interests seeking to use the papers for their personal service rather than as great public servants and educators when it enacted the law requiring semi-annual statements of ownership and financial control. Publicity of this sort was supposed to keep the public informed of the inspiration of the editorial room of such papers. But such publicity is not effective here. Mr. Ford owns this paper and he doesn't care who knows it, nor does he seem to care about libel suits, so long as he can continue to say what he pleases.

Says the Sun: "Assuming even that some sympathetic or indignant jury should bring in a verdict of the full million dollars against Mr. Ford, which is extremely unlikely, he could pay it without feeling the hurt and continue his course of reckless newspaper allegations without check."

BRYAN IN THE NEWS

William Jennings Bryan never realized his ambition to be president of the United States. The voters seemed to think he had not the qualities of a good president. But no one will deny that he has the requirements of a first-class press agent, since he has succeeded in keeping himself in the public eye for a much longer time than many of the men who have been our presidents.

For about twenty years now, William Jennings Bryan has been "news"; he has been loved, hated, lauded and ridiculed by the press and by the people. That Mr. Bryan had applied for membership in the American Association for the Advancement of Science was seen by the press as the most important bit of news in connection with the annual meeting of that body, and there has been a good deal of conjecture as to his purpose, the El Paso Herald intimating that Mr. Bryan was beginning to find himself out of the public eye. Another exchange claims that he wishes to make it impossible for the members of the association to say that they are unanimously on the side of the theory of evolution, while still another states that Mr. Bryan is an apostle of peace who dearly loves a fight and who takes this method of getting into the enemy's camp.

At any rate, Mr. Bryan is still in the news and we must admire his resilience as well as his silver tongue and his magnetic personality, even though his politics do not please us.

UNDERSTANDING PROMOTES PEACE

Since a lack of understanding is the cause of a great deal of the trouble in the world between men and nations, it would seem that the course which is being pursued by the "Young Australia League" should lead to good results in years to come. A hundred and thirty boys who are students at Australian public schools are touring the British Isles and the continent of Europe under the auspices of the league. This is the third tour of the kind that has been made and it is apparent that the league considers the time, effort and money spent on the two former trips to have been justified, since they are sponsoring a third.

The journey is, of course, educational for the lads, but that is not the only consideration. It is hoped and believed that the personal contact with the people of the countries visited will foster friendly feelings and definitely promote the cause of world peace.

If the future citizens of all countries could thus become acquainted with the people and the customs of other countries it might be a good thing for the world. Great Britain is making friends for the empire by sending her popular young prince on tours in foreign countries. The better we know and understand each other, the less likely we are to quarrel.

We get excited about the corn crop, the wheat crop and the apple crop, but the most valuable crop of this nation is the baby crop.

Hats

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Somebody has discovered that the character of a person can be determined by the tilt of his hat. If it is tipped over the left eye it indicates incipient imbecility, and a tilt over the right eye means that one is the very devil of a fellow. A tilt forward is a sign of thoughtfulness, and a tilt back, in a man, means that he is of a happy-go-lucky nature, but in a woman, it means that she is either extremely untidy or profoundly dejected. Perhaps this explains why it is that a woman takes so long to put on her hat.

Hats seem to be a needless sort of thing and possibly it may be that they have value in revealing character. Personally, in a cap I feel like a working man, in a stiff derby I am like a groom, and in a soft hat, which is called a Hamburg, I might be mistaken for a burglar or a detective. In a top hat

I feel a sort of super gentleman. On the whole I should like the style to come of wearing no hat at all, for to wear a hat properly requires a genius and I am not a genius.

Hats are commonly supposed to be put on to keep the head warm, but this hardly applies to women's hats and to many of the men's hats. They are put on merely to keep in style and because the habit has grown upon us.

Certain it is that at present a man does not feel well dressed unless he has a hat on of some kind. It is also certain that the removing of the hat and uncovering of the head is a gesture of politeness that most women insist upon. Just why a man should be supposed to uncover his head, even in the coldest weather, when a woman approaches, is hard to figure out, if he needs any hat at all.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

Among all of Shakespeare's immortal lines, one of the most quoted is this (from Hamlet):

There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough-hew them how we will.

When the hidden power that animates the universe formed the globe which man inhabits, he implanted in the substances and bodies composing it essential properties which became the law of their individual motion, the bond of their reciprocal relations, the cause of the harmony of the whole; he thereby established a regular order of causes and effects, of principles and consequences, which, under an appearance of chance, governs the universe and maintains the equilibrium of the world.

So reasoned Volney three hundred years ago. He observed that not only did this unseen power give to all kinds of matter its general and specific properties (as weight, destiny, elasticity, etc.) but to man who was exposed to the action of so many objects and forces he gave the faculty of sensation.

This faculty of sensation is man's greatest possession. By this faculty all action hurtful to his existence gives him a feeling of pain and evil; and all which is salutary, of pleasure and happiness. By these sensations man has been obliged to cherish and preserve his own life.

Thus, self-love, the desire for happiness, aversion to pain, become the essential and primary laws imposed on man by Nature herself—the laws which the directing power, whatever it be, has established for his government—and which laws, like those of motion in the physical world, are the simple and fruitful principle of whatever happens in the moral world.

Alexander Feodorovich Kerensky, once Red Premier and leader of the Russian Mensheviks or Moderates, will soon take his place as a power in the Russian Soviet government. Is the word from Paris, where Kerensky has been living. He has made his peace with the leaders, it is said, and the way is being opened for his return.

Kerensky, lawyer, Socialist and representative of Russian workingmen in the Russian parliament since 1913, rose to power in the chaos which followed the Russian revolution in 1917.

He attempted to organize the government of the newly proclaimed Russian republic and became, first, minister of justice, then minister of war and finally prime minister.

Four months from July 20, 1917, the day he took power, the Provisional Russian government, of which he was the head, was overthrown by the extremists, or Bolsheviks, under Lenin and Trotsky, who had no use for the moderately socialist program of Kerensky and his Mensheviks. The Bolsheviks dispersed at once the point of the bayonet and established the Soviet government.

Kerensky fled from Russia and for several months his whereabouts was a mystery. The rumor that he had been assassinated by the Bolsheviks persisted until he reappeared in June, 1918, in London to address a labor congress. Thereafter he worked to end the Bolshevik regime.

In January, 1921, he held a conference in Paris and the result was the uprising of the Russian soldiers at Kronstadt, which the Bolshevik troops suppressed. Since then his activities have not been much in public attention.

It was Kerensky who exposed the corruption of the Czar's war munition service which is said to have hastened the revolution. He released all political prisoners in Siberia when he became premier. He attempted to restore discipline in the Russian army in order to fight with the Allies against the Austro-Germans on the Galician front, and he denounced the Bolshevik treaty which removed Russia from the World War.

EDUCATORS HEAR NEW THRIFT PLAN

School Board Members and Bankers Hold Meeting; Discuss Saving

Representatives of a number of Glendale banks gathered last night for dinner at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse, with members of the City Board of Education, to consider a thrift plan for children, outlined by B. M. Donaldson of the School Savings organization of America, a Los Angeles firm.

The plan presented by Mr. Donaldson embraces a system of savings built around the little bank wherein a child can drop small coins, these banks to be issued by the organization, through local banks. In conjunction with this, a service worker visits the schools at regular intervals. Mr. Donaldson explained, giving talks on thrift.

Neither the Board of Education nor the bankers took any action on this plan last night. In order to be adopted, it would first have to be recommended by the Glendale Clearing House association. Should this action be taken prior to the meeting of the board next Tuesday night, the board might take some action, according to Richard D. White, superintendent of city schools, who, with John T. Cate, business manager, and all the members of the board but Mrs. Arthur C. Brown, were present.

Among the Glendale bankers who gathered around the table with Board of Education members to hear the plan were: A. R. Eastman, president of the Glendale State bank and president of the Glendale Clearing House association; C. C. Cooper, president of the Federal Commercial & Savings bank; R. F. Kittsman, vice-president and manager, Glendale branch, Security Trust & Savings bank; Herman Nelson, vice-president and manager, Glendale avenue branch, Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank; George H. Thomas, assistant manager, Brand boulevard branch, Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank; and George T. Harness, assistant manager, Federal Commercial & Savings bank.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN TO ORGANIZE CLUB

Mrs. W. E. Evans Is Given Authorization To Form Association In City For Political Education Purposes

Republican women of Southern California met yesterday at luncheon at the Alexandria hotel, Los Angeles, to honor Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Louisville, Ky., who is vice-chairman of the Republican national committee.

Mrs. Hert had charge of all the women's organizations of the entire country during the last presidential election, and her splendid executive ability, combined with her gracious dignity, endeared her to the women of every state.

Mrs. Harriet Works, second vice-president of the Los Angeles County Central committee, was the first presiding officer at the luncheon, introducing Mrs. O. P. Clark, Republican national committeewoman of California.

Mrs. Clark made a brief address along the theme of political education for women. She then introduced Mrs. Hert, who made the principal address of the day. Her remarks, on a wider and more comprehensive scale, were also devoted to the part women must in the future play in the politics of the nation and the necessity for a proper education along party lines, that women may know the principles for which they are voting. She closed with this defense of the often-abused word, "politics": "Politics is the best peace-time patriotism."

National Federation
Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, founder of the Women's Republican Study club, was then introduced. Mrs. Porter, though well along in years, still has the same breadth of vision for women that has made her a power in women's clubs and in political organizations.

Mrs. Porter submitted, through a resolution, a project to federate the women's Republican clubs of California, looking to a national federation of women's Republican Study clubs. The motion to proceed with a temporary organization, to be known as the Federation of California Republican Women, was unanimously adopted. Mrs. O. P. Clark being elected temporary chairman for the state. At her request a motion was offered by Mrs. W. E. Evans of Glendale, that a northern division and a southern division be organized to better facilitate the work.

Temporary Chairman
This motion was also carried, after which Mrs. Florence Collins Porter was elected temporary chairman of the southern division and Mrs. Carter Maddox of San Francisco, who was present, was elected temporary chairman of the northern division. Mrs. Porter then proceeded to appoint a chairman from each outlying town, whose duty was to be the organizing of a Women's Republican Study club in her own town, provided no women's Republican organization already existed. In case one such did exist, the chairman was to see that it was duly entered in the state federation.

Mrs. W. E. Evans was appointed by Mrs. Porter to organize the Republican women of Glendale into a Republican Study club.

ABANDON PLAN FOR PLANT AT ATWATER

Los Angeles Will Not Put Incinerator Within District, Councilmen Tell Improvement Association Head

Prompt and emphatic action on the part of Atwater residents through the Atwater Community Improvement association has resulted in assurance being given by members of the Los Angeles City Council that no garbage disposal plant and incinerator will be located on the proposed Brainerd tract of fifteen acres on the Los Angeles river between Los Feliz road and Glendale boulevard.

This announcement was made today by Arthur M. Gilman, president of the improvement association, who said that with the assurance that no further steps toward establishing the incinerator in the Atwater district would be taken, the petition protesting the asserted nuisance will not be circulated.

An offer to sell the land to the city for an incinerator site, made by the Brainerd tract owner, was first aired at the meeting of the improvement association Monday night, when a storm of protest arose and definite action to influence the council against accepting the offer was taken. A letter of protest was authorized and a petition against the garbage plant prepared for circulation.

Violent objection to the purchase of nine acres of land on Avenue Twenty-six as a site for the plant was also expressed by residents of that district yesterday.

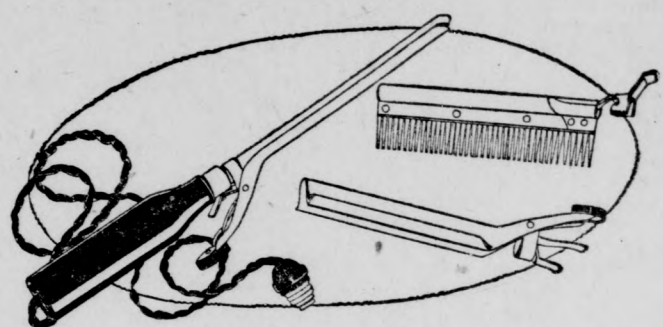

Yeggs Rob Church

Utter, pastor.

According to Rev. Utter, half a dozen chairs used in one of the Sunday school departments are reported.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—Frank Barron, cabin boy and just starting his career as a seaman aboard the freighter York City, Vladivostok to San Pedro, was washed overboard and drowned during a typhoon on the night of January 2. Members of the ship's crew have reported here.

J. M. Haenke, reputed wealthy architect, was arrested in the Marsh-Strong building on a telegraphic warrant charging obtaining money under false pretenses. He is alleged to be wanted for swindles in the northern part of the state aggregating about $15,000 according to San Francisco police.

Plans for a subway escalator by which passengers seated in chairs will be whisked the length of Second street tunnel for a nominal fee were submitted to the City Council by the public utilities committee. The council will be asked to award a franchise to the Tunnel Transportation Co., of which W. C. Hodges is president, permitting it to operate the escalator. Present plans call for the digging of a sub-tunnel twenty feet wide and sixteen feet high under the tunnel roadway.

My Hair Was Quite Gray
"My hair was gray. It was falling out. My scalp itched and dandruff appeared. A few applications of Kolor-Bak stopped the itching and dandruff. My hair soon stopped falling out and now is again its original shade. I look ten years younger."
(A typical letter)

Don't Worry about Gray Hair

This Clean, Colorless Liquid Will Restore the Original Shade

Thousands of people have quickly banished grayness and have restored the original shade to their hair with the remarkable preparation known as Kolor-Bak.

Physicians and scientists know that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells in the scalp because these cells have become inactive. No matter what the cause, it is amazing to see how the grayness disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is the best known substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also banishes dandruff and stops itching of the scalp and falling hair. If you are gray, Kolor-Bak is all you need to make your hair look "young" again. No need to furnish a sample of your hair—no tests to make—as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Money back instantly if Kolor-Bak is not satisfactory.

CHAPTER XXVI

A fit of restlessness seized Grant. He gave his servant the necessary orders, interviewed the travel manager in the hotel and secured the best accommodation possible on the steamer. Then he permitted himself to think dazedly, opened up the closed chambers in his mind, welcomed reflection and memory. He would find out what her silence really meant, what she thought or believed about him. In a sense, it was all very hopeless. He had been forced into an accursed position. He scarcely knew even now how to appraise it. And yet the big thing remained unaltered and still seemed to tower over everything else—he loved Susan. There was not a grain of affection in his heart for anybody else. She was his only possible companion. Was he so much less fit for her than any other of the young men by whom she was surrounded? He tried to judge himself and his position fairly. The trouble was that it could never be represented to any one else in the same manner. I remembered and brooded with gloomy insistence over that slight vein of prudery in Susan, something altogether unconnected with the narrow ways, or any unduly censorious attitude towards life, which seldom in fact expressed itself in speech, but was more a part of herself, a sort of instinctive and supercilious shrinking from the small licenses of a world which she never judged in words. Perhaps he had fallen forever in her esteem; perhaps the one sin recorded against him would have cost him already what he had won. Now that he was going to see her so soon, he wondered how he had been content to wait to know the truth. Next Thursday he would be in London. It was the height of the season and she would certainly be there. Next Thursday or Friday they might meet. He told himself that he would know in the first ten seconds whether his disaster had been irredeemable.

TENT THEATRE

Toby Walters and his clever cast of actors are playing to capacity houses at the Big Tent theatre on San Fernando road. From all indications the public has taken very kindly to Mr. Walters and his company of players.

A fast moving comedy under the title "Sylvia of the Circus" furnishes three acts of unusual comedy. The situation of a circus girl dressed in pink tights in the home of the minister of the town brings constant laughter from the audience. Sylvia is a balloon girl and drops on the parsonage of the spiritual adviser of the town; is rescued by the minister and shown usual hospitality.

Toby Walters, as the constable, doesn't help things out but is constantly making things worse by trying to make them better. And Poynter's men are wonderful. There are two of them at the next table. They look all right, don't they?

"They look just like two successful business men talking over a deal," Grant observed.

"Well, they aren't," Hodson assured him. "They're two of Poynter's shrewdest detectives. They've got guns in their pockets and their job is to see that no one tries to steal a march on me from the lounge. One of my men is down in the kitchen. I dared not eat anything on the train, for they were in with the chef there. I've been shot at twice in the last twenty-four hours. They nearly got me, too. It's a great storm that's gathering, Grant."

"Exactly why are you sending me to England?"

"Listen," was the earnest reply. "This is official. It comes from the White House. You know who owns the New York now. You know the power at the back of the greater part of our press. They want to make bad blood between Great Britain and this country. You can guess why. They're at it already, and the British Press, quite naturally, is beginning to take up. Use all your influence with Lord Yeovil. Tell him the truth. Get him to take you to see his own big newspaper people and try to keep the feeling down. Beg him to disregard any attacks upon him personally, either before he comes or directly he lands. It's all part of the game. It will all be over, tell him, in two months, and for heaven's sake do what you can to stop trouble."

"I certainly will," Grant promised. "I used to have a certain amount of influence with Lord Yeovil."

"That's why we're sending you. One reason, at any rate. Then—Hullo! another farewell party, I see."

"I hadn't come to that. Cornelius Blunn is sailing for England tomorrow. He'll be your fellow passenger."

"Where the devil is he off to?"

"A dozen of the most astute brains in the States, besides my own, have tried to solve that question," Hodson replied. "At present, I must frankly admit that we don't know. I have a theory. He's getting a trifle shaken up in New York. Not exactly scared, but nervous. He wants to re-establish confidence. There's a dinner of German bankers in London at which he is advertised to take the chair. He imagines that his attendance at that function just now will put us off the scot. He'll probably come back by your steamer."

"Is he taking the casket with him, I wonder," Grant reflected.

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"Love Laughs," the new Dobinson Players' production opening tonight at the Tuesday Afternoon club theatre, and said to be the best comedy these popular entertainers have yet offered, is being sponsored tonight and tomorrow night by the Glendale commandery, No. 53, Knights Templar, whose share of the proceeds will go toward sending their drill team to the triennial encampment at Seattle in June.

The author of "Love Laughs" is George D. Parker. The curtain rises at 8:15 o'clock. The play might well have for its slogan, "Two shows for the price of one," as it is really two plays—one a comedy of propinquity and love, the other a melodrama of "stolen" gems and midnight burglary—neatly dovetailed.

The excellent cast chosen for this production includes Mary Isabelle Alpaugh, Joseph McManis, Mary Worth, William H. Stephens, Richard Ehlers, Eugenia Florence, Arthur Lovejoy and Harry J. Glazier.

GATEWAY THEATRE

Many interesting and unusual discussions arise between scenes in making a picture. The players, while waiting for adjustments of lights, camera and the like, usually fall into the habit of discussing general events and then a property or bit of action will draw out a rich vein of information along some line of endeavor.

In the movies it is atmosphere along the line of the action stimulate the emotion. Thus in a set like the modiste shop in "Borrowed Husbands" which is shown at the Gateway Theatre today with the usual Wednesday feature of selected vaudeville, the conversation drifts to clothes. In the mountain lodge set of the same production it turns to sports and recreation or the beauties of the natural surroundings.

With the player these conversations are all part of a day's work, but many times they furnish suitable information for interviews and short articles which are read with interest by the average fan.

Grant reflected.

"Is he taking the casket with him, I wonder," Grant reflected.

Uncle Wiggly

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGLY AND BUNTY'S BOOS

Baby Bunty, the little rabbit girl, was visiting Nurse Jane and Uncle Wiggly in the hollow stump bungalow one day. Just now the rabbit gentleman wasn't at home—only Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy who was reading the paper.

"Nurse Jane," called Bunty, after she had played with her dolls on the floor for a time. "Say, Nurse Jane?"

"Yes, Bunty, what is it, dear?"

"I like you, Nurse Jane."

"To you, Bunty?"

"That's nice," Nurse Jane kept on reading. Then Bunty said again:

"Nurse Jane!"

"Yes, dear, what is it?"

"Do you like me, Nurse Jane?"

"Of course I do, my dear."

"Well, you didn't say so. Anyhow, if you like me, Nurse Jane, could I hide behind the door and holler 'Boo!' at Uncle Wiggly when he comes home? Could I please holler 'Boo!' at him?"

Crying "Boo!" was Bunty's pet trick. Whenever she visited Uncle Wiggly she always teased to be allowed to hide behind the door to shout at the bunny as he entered. And Uncle Wiggly was always frightened almost to death when Bunty jumped out at him. At any rate it seemed so. Uncle Wiggly would jump up and gasp and cry:

"Oh, the Goblins will get me if I don't watch out!"

Then Bunty would laugh like anything.

"Please may I holler 'Boo!' at Uncle Wiggly?" she asked again.

"Oh, yes, I guess so," answered Nurse Jane, knowing how much it would please the little rabbit girl.

Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Just about this time Uncle Wiggly was on his way home. And the bunny gentleman said to himself:

"I have lost my door key. I shall have to ring the bell for Nurse Jane to let me in. I hope none of the bad chaps have found my key or they might go in, hide behind the door and wait for me. I hope that doesn't happen."

But a bad chap had found the bungalow key. The Wolf had found it, and as the key had Uncle Wiggly's name on it the Wolf knew whose it was. Smiling hungrily, the Wolf hopped to the hollow stump bungalow.

"I'll let myself softly in with Uncle Wiggly's key," whispered the Wolf to himself. "Then I'll hide behind the door before Nurse Jane gets there, and I'll have some good ear nibbles off that rabbit. I'll get him this time."

So the Wolf went hippity-hop to the bungalow and opened the door with the key he had found. But, though he made very little noise, Baby Bunty heard the key rattle in the hole.

"Oh, there comes Uncle Wiggly," she whispered to Nurse Jane. "I'll slip out in the hall and shout

"Boo!" at him. It will be lots of fun."

Softly, softly, the bad Wolf opened the door. It was dark in the hall and Bunty couldn't see very well, but, of course, she thought it was Uncle Wiggly coming in.

"Boo!" cried the little rabbit girl, as loudly as she could. "Boo! Boo! I'm a goblin! I'm a boo-booer! Woo! Woo! Wah!"

"Oh, my goodness!" cried the Wolf, dropping the key. "What in the world is this? Some other bad chap must have gotten in here ahead of me—a big, bad chap, who may nibble me. I'd better run."

And out he ran, and Nurse Jane, coming in just then to light the hall, so Uncle Wiggly wouldn't stumble, after Bunty had scared him—Nurse Jane and the little rabbit girl saw the Wolf running away.

"Oh, what do you know about that?" cried Bunty. "I scared the Wolf away. How glad I am." And just then along came the bunny, and as he saw Bunty she didn't get a chance to boo him.

"But, anyhow, I'm glad I booted the Wolf," laughed the little girl. And the bad chap didn't stop shivering all that night.

And if the hammer doesn't hit the finger nail on the head and make its hair curl, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and the tomato.

DYNAMITERS AND TIGERS TO MEET

Double Header Casaba Tilt Tomorrow Afternoon at Harvard High Gym

By ROSS M. RUSSELL, JR.
Of The Evening News Staff.

The second series of basketball games to be played at home will come off tomorrow afternoon when the South Pasadena Tigers bring two teams here to battle the Glendale lightweights and fleawrights in the second round of the Central league schedule.

Both games should be fast and featured with short passing. The Tigers have probably the second best hardwood five in the league and will run Glendale close for second honors. As Glendale and South Pasadena are deadly rivals, both games ought to get down to brass tacks ere the first quarter is old.

Coach Butterfield's boys, who dropped the opening tilt to Alhambra last Thursday, are fighting hard and have yet a ghost of a chance of coping first place, that is, if Glendale wins all the rest of its games while the Moors lose at least one. The Glendale squad plays finished basketball and last week's defeat was somewhat of a surprise to the locals, nevertheless Alhambra has a wonder team in all three classes and promises to do in basketball what Glendale did in football this year.

Lightweight Crew

The lightweight lineup will probably be much the same as that of last time, with Wilbur Harrison and Johnny Lovell at forwards, Archie Neel, captain and center, and Jack Alvord and Elmer Muff at guards. Lovell is a very accurate and sensational basket shooter and seldom fails to bring the crowd to its feet with shots that trickle through the little iron ring. The lightweights expect a hard battle but are out to make up for last week's take-down.

Coach "Hairbreadth Harry" Hicks has been training his proteges for the preliminary game with the Tigerlets and has his outfit in good shape. Although Hicks has not announced his lineup it will probably be as follows: Forwards, Reed and Oseier, center, Alvord, running guard, Killing, and stationary guard, Randall. Those who will probably get into the game are: Sunderland, Jensen and Morgan. Last week the Firecrackers won from the Moor infants, 14 to 13, in a whirlwind battle and tomorrow will be out to finish on top.

The best policy for those who wish to get a squirt at either game is to come early and avoid the rush as the gymnasium at Harvard High accommodates only about one-third of those who wish to see the game. Although it was arranged to play the league games outside the other schools in the league protested to such a degree that the Glendale High officials were forced to desist and be content with the inside courts.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Can it be possible that Mike McGinney really has something wrong with his hands, especially his right, and that, after an operation has been performed, involving the removal of a bone, he will do a Jekyll-Hyde stunt and become a knockout?

It looks that way. A really high-class surgeon has actually gone on record to the effect that Mike has been troubled by floating bones, or something like that, in his maules, and that, when the flaws have been repaired, he will be able to hit out like a little man.

In ever fight Mike has had in the past year or so he has put up a squawk about bad hands, and the funny part of it seems to be that the hands were really on the blink. Maybe, when he has recovered from the effects of the surgeon's knife, he will become a dangerous guy for anyone to face.

As a matter of fact, some time back Mike was quite a knockout. He used to stow away man after man. Johnny Klesch's promising career was cut short by Mike, and such fighters as Jack Stone, K. O. Jaffe, Gene Brosseau and some forty odd other young men were sent to sleep by him.

He won over Milly Beckett by a knockout in Jersey City two years ago, and after that he seemed to lose punching power, and become more defensive in his methods of mulling. Mike says that, when his hands get back into shape, he is going to meet all contenders for his world's title without fear or favor.

AMUSEMENT CENTER

With a roof of glass so that the building may be used as a summer garden in winter, an amusement center, 262 feet long and 100 feet wide, will be erected in Victoria, Canada, and house swimming pool, baths and dancing floor.

Fifty Years of Sport

Sullivan Played Big Part in Revolution of Boxing

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Written for The Evening News

The transformation of the boxing game, coincident with the birth of the modern era in sport, history fifty years ago, forms the most interesting chapter in the annals of prize-fighting.

And the name that stands out above all others during this transformation period is that of John L. Sullivan. He is dead now, but he will always rank as one of the greatest and most picturesque fighters that ever lived.

When Tom Allen and Mike O'Toole squared off in St. Louis, September 23, 1873, no one suspected that they were paving the way for the rise to fame of Sullivan and his followers who made heavyweight history in the modern era.

Allen had come from England four years previously and after a series of battles had claimed the world's championship. O'Toole challenged him. Allen beat him in seven rounds.

Lasts 87 Rounds

Three years later, Joe Goss beat Allen and still claimed the title when Paddy Ryan challenged him. The two men met at Collier Station, W. Va., May 30, 1880. The fight went eighty-seven rounds. Ryan emerged from a blood-soaked battle-ground a winner.

Now, it was while these men were drawing attention that John L. Sullivan was writing the first chapters of his career. The year 1875—just fifty years back—found him in Boston, 17 years old, hard as nails, and feared by every fighter in that city. He became known as the "Boston Strong Boy."

Oddly enough, one of his first big victories was a three-round knockout over Goss, then one of the men claiming the American heavyweight title.

Sullivan's big chance came when he was taken to New York. Sullivan's willingness to fight, his novel methods of "training," and his murderous looks and intentions in the ring made him popular.

Tour of Country

He made his first tour of the country meeting all comers, and his showing caused fans to demand a battle between him and Ryan.

Now, as a matter of information, Goss, as said before, had beaten Allen, British claimant of the championship. Ryan had licked Goss. Great Britain and America then were the only countries deep in the fighting game. So when Sullivan and Ryan were matched it was universally agreed that the world's championship was at stake. Later efforts to dispute Sullivan's claim to the title must be classed as piffle.

Sullivan and Ryan met at Mississippi City, Miss., February 2, 1882, and John L. kicked Ryan out in nine rounds, enthrone himself legitimately as king, and the first king of the modern era. That battle was fought with bare hands.

Sullivan's murderous punches helped sound the knell of the bare knuckle days. Seven years later the soggy thumping of his huge knuckles on the battered frame of Jake Kilrain played the funeral dirge of the old, brutal game.

That fight went seventy-five rounds. It lasted two hours and sixteen minutes. John L. himself helped introduce the gloves into the sport by using them during his world tour that followed.

Those gloves were not pillows.

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—With tennis players generally inclined to support the player-writer rule as now formulated and the U. S. L. T. A., likely to adopt it, what is to happen to our international tennis prestige were Tilden to retire? This just now is the chief topic wherever tennis enthusiasts foregather.

Granting that Tilden's absence from the courts would deprive the American game of a great deal of color—since the champion is picturesque in personality as he is great in ability—it really does not seem likely that foreign countries would be able to deprive the United States of its laurels for a few years to come, at least.

From William Johnston, who is not through by any means, Vincent Richards should be a top-notch for three or four years at least. He is now only 21 years old, Howard Kinsey is also young and is coming up by leaps and bounds, while he and Robert in doubles are not only the American champions, but are getting more formidable as a pair, season by season. Snodgrass, who rates number seven this year, is also likely to improve his game, and so is Hennessy of Indianapolis.

Then two real youngsters, George Lot of Chicago and Alfred Chapin of Massachusetts, ought to be coming along great guns in a year or so.

As for the veterans, Norris Williams can still turn in an unbeatable game when he is in the mood, and Bill Johnston, as said by no means through.

It is doubtful, according to the best judges, that the two younger stars of Australian tennis, Kaims and Schlesinger, will rise to the heights of the veterans, Brooks, Anderson, Wood and Patterson, who, it would seem, have given more than faint indications of slipping.

England offers nothing to worry about. France does. La Coste is making great strides, and Cochet and Borotra are young, ambitious and capable of further development. If the United States is to lose her crown in the future France perhaps will be the one to take it. But not, it would seem, in the next two years in any event.

However, they were skin tight, of tough leather. They protected the hands a bit, but, soaked in blood or water—when the men fought in the open in the rain, as they often did, were more disastrous to an opponent's features than bare knuckles.

The earlier bouts mentioned above were fought under London prize ring rules. Brutality was unchecked.

During this period strenuous efforts were being made in England to alter the rules to put the game on a more gentlemanly and sportsmanlike basis. The prime movers in this effort were the Marquis of Queensberry and Arthur Chambers, the latter a lightweight fighter.

Together they drafted the rules which have ever since been used as a basis for the conduct of the game.

How changing conditions and the modern fighters have altered these rules and the game will be discussed in due time.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Emil Yde, the kid pitcher of the National league, celebrated his very first year in major league company by equalling the record for percentages of games won in the National league by pitchers who hurled ten or more games.

Yde won sixteen games and lost three, for a percentage of .842. Almost as surprising as the fact that a kid pitcher ran up such an imposing average is the coincidence that he exactly equalled the old mark of .842 which was set by Tom Hughes of Boston.

Prior to 1916, when Hughes made his record, there had been no pitcher from the beginning of National league history who had been able to produce such a large percentage of victories. Eight years later, a first year pitcher, who had left the west to the accompaniment of hints that the east would do well to keep an eye on him, was able to duplicate his feat.

Yde's work throughout the season was most extraordinary. For the greater part of the year it looked as though he were going to finish the season without a single defeat.

Should Yde succeed in 1925 as well as he did in 1924, he would create for himself a two year record without parallel in baseball, and possibly one that would survive for all time. It is hard to imagine how long a period might elapse before any player would be equally successful.

The chances against such success are enormous. There is still another record mark about the National league pitching of 1924. Yde was one of two pitchers to win more than 800 per cent of his games. Vance did the same thing. His percentage was .824. Anyone who is the least bit superstitious about figures can find something to think about in those figures—Yde, .842; Vance, .824, in which the arrangement of the last two digits is the only difference.

For two pitchers of a major league who worked in more than ten complete games to establish percentages above .800 is some achievement in these days of base ball, when the batters have been lapping the leather so hard that it has groaned whenever it has been hit.

The combined record constitutes one of the best marks that the National league has set in its fifty years of baseball. Vance won twenty-eight games and lost six to get as far as he did. Had he not dropped those three games to the Giants, two of which he grumbled about as his "tough luck" games of the year, he would have had a percentage of .921, which would be astounding.

Thus, while Yde made his mark by equalling a record, Vance was in a fair way to make the greatest record of all time—except that set by A. G. Spaulding in 1875 when in the old National association he pitched with a winning percentage of .934, using the bowling form of delivery in vogue at that time.

BASKETBALL RESULTS

The Radios opened the City league casaba season last night with a bang, defeating the Central Christian church team 55 to 10 at the Harvard High school gymnasium. McRowan was the chief p-ntinger for the Radios, accounting for 26 points. Both were second high with 16. Other members of the team and the points made are: Worthman, 6; McAllester, 4; Schenck, 3. The scoring machinery of the church crew consisted of: Stone, 4; Bowlers, 3; Dennis, 2; Logsdon, 1; Substitutes, Corbin for Dennis, Davis for Corbin, Roach for Logsdon, Shawback for Roach.

The American Legion team from Post No. 127 appeared at the Harvard gym last night for their initial practice. They took the floor against the Calla Lily team during the intermission for the Radios-Christian church game, with the former service men showing up strong in their first workout.

Tonight's battle will be between the Hull Trucks and Standard Oils. Thursday the Calla Lily crew will tackle the M. E. church. The City league schedule will last until February 18. All games start at 7:30 o'clock, admission is free to the public, and some fast casaba tossing is promised.

Archie Neel Is Named Captain of Hoop Crew.

Archie Neel, star center and letterman of the Glendale lightweight basketball team was yesterday elected captain for this season in a vote held by the members of the squad. Of the thirteen votes cast ten were for Neel. Neel is playing a wonderful game this year, which is his last, and certainly deserves to lead the quintet in the remainder of the games.

Neel earned his letter last year on Butterfield's lightweight squad.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

That "Golden Bed" which Cecil de Mille left as his parting "bathroom" thriller for Paramount release adds still further proof that Cecil has run out of "bathroom" ideas. Not so good — "The Golden Bed." A lot of flourish has been put on the title and it would impress as meaning something, but it doesn't, except ing a lot of De Mille pretense and presenting an almost total absence of comedy relief to a plot verging on depression. One look at the 24-sheets screaming over the billboards along the highways and byways would lead one to believe he or she was going to see an importation of a Turkish harem scene on a particularly wild night at the Pasha's palace.

De Mille's "bathroom" stories have had their day. They once were good—that's about the most charitable way of expressing their decline. De Mille built his reputation on pretense and gaudy surroundings. He took every essential of the drama seriously but its fundamental base—the story.

A good story falling into the hands of De Mille was doomed to merciless changes for the simple reason that De Mille couldn't reconcile the art of directing pictures with anything but pretentious living. He never would allow himself to "come down to earth" in interpreting the stories given him.

De Mille probably was the most fortunate director in the business at one time. What he said went. And that proved his downfall. Individuality predominated his every production. Individuality in screen production will murder any creation ever attempted for stage or screen.

Even David Belasco, called the "master producer" of the American stage, is broad-minded enough to keep his individuality from dominating one of his productions. Walk in on Belasco when he is producing a play and you will find a half-dozen advisers working with him—each an expert in his particular branch of dramatic specialization.

De Mille found that his individual opinion worked to perfection while the veneer laid across his "bathroom" idea of drama could be used as a screen before his public's eyes. But when that glamour wore off, De Mille "saw the light."

You can't ignore the other fellow and make a lasting success of anything. Two minds are better than one—always and at all times. And in the case of the business of making pictures, the more minds the merrier.

One member of the motion picture producing end of the industry stands out almost alone as a believer and actual practitioner of the "more minds the merrier" theory. He is Harold Lloyd.

Lloyd is surrounded by five or six so-called "gag men" and these "gag men" are final authorities on what Lloyd puts on the screen. Lloyd, himself, is one of the "gag" commission. They get together, pick the chaff from the wheat and when they get through they have the thoughts of a half-dozen experts melded into one. That's why Harold Lloyd hasn't experienced a "flop" in production during his career as independent producer.

That's one of the big drawbacks operating against progress in the picture industry today. There is too much jealousy—too much of this "I'm-afraid-that-guy-will-get-my-job-away-from-me" sentiment at work in the studio.

We know of cases where brainy, skilled, "idea" men have been virtually chased out of a studio because they knew too much. We know of entire sequences having been thrown out of scenarios because the director didn't want his boss to know someone else besides the director had an idea once in a while.

There shouldn't be such a thing as a boss in a motion picture studio. Everyone should be a boss and every boss should work with the other boss, compare ideas, take the sum of all as the best ones and give the staff credit—not some one member because he happens to be in the driver's seat.

SCORES

Harold Lloyd's gang of bowlers scored a knockout last night at the Glendale Recreation alleys, when they took the games from the Red Feathers. Only two men on the winning team rolled under 200, Shay in the last game and Mathison in the first. Gregg, anchor man for the winners, rolled high individual score with 232 in the third game. High team score came in the second game, counted 1068. Gregg took honors on high total with 227-211-232, for a total of 670. The scores:

Two Youths Capture Wild Bobcat In Traps

A wild bobcat, measuring three-two inches from nose to tail, was caught by two Glendale boys, John Klann, 537 West Milford street, and Joe Ponkey, 405 West Concord street, at the junction of Milford street and the Los Angeles river, last night. The bobcat fell into a No. 1 trap set in the river bed by the boys. She was caught by only one toe, and fought back furiously when its captors approached. It is the second wildcat trapped in the vicinity recently.

L. W. Chobe Gives His Views on Float Entry

that "even a small local celebration would be of much greater advertising value for our city than entering a float costing a large amount of money in the Tournament of Roses." This statement is so obviously absurd that it needs no further comment. A local annual celebration, such as small towns have, in my opinion is of little or no value for municipal advertising. A local celebration would help to advertise our local merchants, but of what interest would such a celebration be to the foreign press and attention? And it is this foreign advertising that is so much desired by a wide-awake municipality.

Only One Rose Tournament.
"There is only one world-renowned Tournament of Roses, which Pasadena originated, and has successfully celebrated its thirty-sixth anniversary, with the added attraction of the east and west football game makes it an annual event that is of interest to people all over the world. We should be proud to be able to participate in such an event, because, while Pasadena needs Glendale, Glendale needs Pasadena as much. The tournament advertises Southern California, and what helps Southern California helps Glendale.

"I understand that one Glendale dry goods store has spent $15,000 in one year for advertising. Another Glendale department store is spending $5200 per year for one type of advertising alone. Floats have been entered in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, other than Glendale, costing $3000 and $4000. The average yearly cost of Glendale's floats since 1920 has been $1600.

Plenty of Publicity.
"Attached hereto is a clipping and cut of Glendale's Fairytale float from this year's Midwinter Number of The Los Angeles Times, which, I venture to say, goes to every state in the union. I have cuts and writeups of Glendale's floats from different eastern papers, as from Boston, The Cincinnati Enquirer, and others. I respectfully call your attention to the half-page cut of the Glendale float in the rotogravure section of The New York Times, now on display in Roberts & Echols' drug store window.

"Beside newspaper advertising, Glendale is advertised on the screen by Pathé News, which goes all over the world. Many thousands of post cards and tournament books are bought by people and sent to every part of the world, advertising Glendale.

"Who can estimate the value of such advertising, and who can say that $1600 per year is a large amount of money to spend to advertise a municipality in this way? Respectfully,

"Chairman, Float Committee."

Mrs. Toll Presides at Hollywood Club Meet

Mrs. Charles H. Toll, president of Los Angeles district, California Federation of Women's clubs, presided yesterday at the presidents' council at the Hollywood Women's club. Glendale's federated clubs sent a large delegation. John Steven McGroarty was a speaker in the morning, on "Golden Scroll" for financing the Mission Play at San Gabriel. Another interesting feature was the talk by Mr. Adams, who made a plea for the club women to sponsor a department of Braille books in the Los Angeles public library for the use of the blind.

During the luncheon speakers were Emory Matt Rush, president of the Southern California Women's Press club; Mrs. Charles H. Richmond, president of the Hostess club; Mrs. Mead, junior past president of the Hostess club; Mrs. J. J. Carter. In the afternoon Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer, first vice-president of the district, spoke on the memorial redwood grove fund. Mrs. Toll was presented with $100 in gold realized by federation secretaries of the district from subscriptions on a magazine. The money will be used for furnishings for the district headquarters in Los Angeles.

HOLLYGLEN ROAD TO JOIN FILMDOM

Chamber Highways Head
Says Such Highway Is Entitled Thought

Plans presented by Edward Winters, Hollywood attorney, and backed by a number of residents of the Movie City, for a wide, well-lighted boulevard connecting Brand boulevard, in Glendale, with Hollywood boulevard, are entirely feasible, and there is nothing in the way to hinder the projection of such a road, L. T. Rowley, chairman of the highways and bridges committee of the Chamber of Commerce, told chamber directors last night.

The most favorable report on the proposed highway was made by Mr. Rowley, following a tour of inspection by his committee of the contemplated route the road would follow. The committee composed of Mr. Rowley, chairman; George L. Kaeding, L. E. Oleson, Harry E. White, J. I. Wernette, A. G. Cornwell and Morgan Smith, was unanimous in its approval of the plan of Attorney Winters.

Hollyglen Boulevard.
The boulevard, which it is proposed to call Hollyglen boulevard, would form probably the most direct route possible between Glendale and Hollywood, Mr. Rowley said, and would be a most commendable undertaking for the Chamber of Commerce to sponsor. The matter will be discussed further by the highways committee chairman at the joint meeting of civic associations of the district with supervisors of the county and Los Angeles city councilmen, to take place at the Hollywood Athletic club tonight. Members of the board of directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce also will be present at the meeting.

Mr. Rowley will secure blueprint plans and full specifications for the highway, and if they receive the approval of his committee he will lay them before the chamber directors at an early meeting for endorsement.

Toy Symphony to Play For Community Service

A toy symphony orchestra, in which the audience will be invited to join, will be a feature of the third meeting of the series of community sings, which will be held in the Harvard high school auditorium at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, under the auspices of the Glendale Community Service.

A second feature of the program will be a group of numbers by five members of the Glendale Symphony orchestra. Members of the group are: V. A. Stoll and Henry Rafael, violins; Marie Bachman, piano; W. A. Anderson, flute, and Lloyd Knapp, cello. Singing will be led by J. Arthur Myers, with Mrs. Gertrude Erb as accompanist. H. S. Robinson's singing charts will be used. A good attendance is expected. No admission will be charged.

Cooking Class Meets Planned for Thursday

An interesting program has been provided, according to D. L. Gregg, for the Thursday afternoon cooking class held under the supervision and direction of Mrs. Mae Cummings at the Gregg Hardware Co., 109 North Brand. "These cooking classes," he said, "are held every Thursday afternoon, 2 to 4 o'clock. For tomorrow, Mrs. Cummings will make and serve vegetable pie, cheese biscuits and burnt sugar cake. A special attendance prize and one of Mrs. Cummings' favorite recipes—a Sunshine cake—will be baked and awarded to some fortunate woman.
